What We Measure

HPI

The Bright Side of Personality

The Hogan Personality Inventory, or HPI, measures the bright side of personality — how we get along with others and achieve our goals when we're at our best.

HDS

The Dark Side of Personality

The Hogan Development Survey, or HDS, is the industry-leading measure of the dark side of personality — strengths that can become weaknesses in times of stress or complacency.

MVPI

The Inside of Personality

The Motives, Values, Preferences Inventory, or MVPI, describes personality from the inside — the core goals and drivers that determine what we desire and what motivates us.

What's Included

Potential Report

How others see us is rarely how we see ourselves. Based on the HPI, the Potential report focuses on seven dimensions of personality to explain how others would describe a leader's everyday behavior and approach to work.

Challenge Report

When a leader is faced with stress or pressure, personality characteristics that might otherwise be strengths emerge as weaknesses. Based on the HDS, the Challenge report is designed to identify career-derailing behaviors that can interfere with building a cohesive and high-performing team.

Values Report

Our core values drive our behavior, aspirations, and expectations, and they determine leadership style, unconscious biases, and alignment with organizational culture. Drawing from Hogan's MVPI, the Values report shines light on the type of work environment the leader will create.

Flash Report

The Flash report is a two-page graphic overview of the participant's HPI, HDS, and MVPI main scale and subscale scores. Designed for use only by those with Hogan certification, the Flash report contains no interpretive information and is perfect for use during interviews and feedback sessions.
